To our ecclematical readers in may not be differenble that we give fome those account of the defect or rather convertation, which took place in the prebyery of Edinburgh on Wednesday last, previous which Prebytery of Edinburgh on Wednesday last, previous to their resolution, which was verbatim inserted in our last, respecting a matter of general importance to the Church — The remit of last General Assumbly concerning the Form of Process had been, a serviced in a meeting of Presbytery, committed to Messive and Hardie, to consider and draw up an oping concerning the to be reported to this non concerning it, to be reported to this.

The report being called for, Mr Kemp (Mr blandie The report being extreme too, but Acomp (Mr Mardie not having as yet come to the meeting) stated, that the Committee were still of the time opinion, in general, with that expressed by this Presbytery in the month of April, and transmitted to last General Affembly, viz. That they wished for no alteration upon the form of Process used in the Church since the year 1707, except in fo far as regarded appeals in the intermediate stages of criminal processes, by thich they have been, and especially of late, promated to a most vexations and unreasonable length; and that in a declaration to this purpose, to be submitted to the Presbytery for their adoption, Mr. Hardie and he had perfectly coincided; but that in one point they had differed in orinion, which he would candidly submit to the Presbytery, and leaves the least of the present the least of the present the least of the present the least of the leaves of the least of t wheir decision;—it was this, Whether apon fuf-nising the relevancy of a libel, and the hit of wir-seles for its probation by the inferior courts, an ap-gal in that stage of the business should be competest to fift procedure, and bring the objections against the relevancy, and the witnesses, and any other materials their procedure, before the Courts of Review for decision? or, Whether no appeal should be admitted to fift procedure until the final confirmmation othe process, when all parts of it protested against hould, by an appeal, be brought under review, and receive an immediate decision? Mr Kemp said, that Mr Hardie inclined to the first of these opinions, and he to the fecond; but that, far from being poliine of the Superior firmels of the plan to which he we inclined to give the preference, he would chear-

Sir Harry Moncreiff faid, that he was clearly of opinion, that it was absolutely necessary to admit of two appeals in criminal processes; the first, and the one in question, at the interlocutor of the Prefberry fultaining the relevancy of the like! and administration of the witnesses, for that, if an amena fife. present vale, and might indeed often occur, that a liel, irrelevant both as to matter and form, might be admitted to probation; that the Court of Review would, of confequence, find the whole procedure upon it hall and void, yet could not, without a manifit violation of all practice in courts both civil and sclefaftical, order the fame charges, shough ferious ad important, to be again admitted to proof: that held erroneous and irrelevant saight be exhibited. hough the ignorance of private profecutors, and flained, perhaps framed too, by Prefbyteries either from unacquaintedness with forms, or (it was at half a supposition which might be made) from defign, and a too anxious desire to screen a beloved, though. fending brother : that this was an evil of too great agnitude not to be anxiously provided against ; be, and all objections to the wineses should be de-

No other members having rifen to speak, Mr. Kempfaid, that he felt the full effects of all that had been flated by the preceding speaker, but would forly mention what occurred to him in support of the opinion, which was not his only, but that of the Prelbytery unanimoufly in the month of April; viz. that no appeal should fift procedure in a process, until its final consummation. By this plan, Mr Kemp sid, there would be an obvious saving of time, which it is the great object of this amendment upon our form of process to obtain; for, admit of two appeals, and two appeals will conftantly be taken, whether with or without foundation; and the first, by good management, may easily be made to create a delay of a least a year. In a matter so plain, and in which so much direction is to be obtained both by printed forms and by advice it is to granter to be supported. forms and by advice, it is feareely to be supposed that a Preflytery can ignorantly err, either in framing or fusianing a libel. The other case, indeed, he admitted to be supposeable, that they might do so by design; but the consequence would be, that they would expose themselves to such indignation from the public, as well as from Sanator Course. the public, as well as from Superior Courts, as no men of character would submit to; and besides, in a fagrant case, where the intention of seening delinquency was apparent, the General Affembly, he was confident, ex nobili officio, would be entitled to do a thing extraordinary indeed, (he admitted) but necessary, viz. to order a new libel and a new proof to be taken, of the same sacts formerly, but errone-only admitted to probation. Upon the whole, he submitted to the Backs. submitted to the Presbytery, Whether the faving of time, by preventing an intermediate, and, in most cafes, an evidently needless and vexatious appeal, did not afford a sufficient balance to the objections which had been thated to the opinion he had delivered. He repeated, however, that in the fentiments of his bethren he was perfectly disposed to acquielce.

Dr Johnston and some other members having figaified their preference of the opinion which admitted of two appeals, the resolution of Presbytery, as in ferred in our last, in conformity to the report or the Committee, unanimously passed.

A miraculous cure was performed last week, at Wigton, on two women who were reported to have been born deaf and dumb. —A boy, who acted as conductor to these unfortunate females, (who, in lieu of these two useful fenses, were endued with the pe solar gifts of healing certain diseases, and predicting future events) was conducted by some wags into a house, and a bunch of birch applied for some times about a solar sola time to his posteriors, till, at length, he reluctantly confid d his belief in the possibility of prevailing on one of them to open her mouth in an intelligible manner. - After fome menaces, both the ladies were brought to the place, and means, contething like those already mentioned were ared to furcessuity, that in a few minares both of them spoke so as to be perfectly well understood.
